

Courses and levels

All our courses are available for all levels as established by the CEFR: From Beginner (A1) to Proficient (C2) levels

A1 - Breakthrough or beginner

The student is able to understand and put into practice common and frequently used everyday expressions, such as general phrases aimed at the instant satisfaction of the basic needs. He/she can introduce him/herself and others, request and provide basic personal information about place of residence, personal belongings and the people he/she knows. He/she can interact in a simple way provided that other speaker talks slowly and clearly and is willing to collaborate.

A2 - Waystage or elementary

The student is able to fully understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to the areas of his/her experiences of particular immediate relevance (basic personal and family information, shopping, places of interest, occupations, etc.). He/she can communicate to fulfill simple and common tasks, which require a casual and direct exchange of information related to the habitual and familiar issues. He/she can describe in simple terms the aspects of background and environment, as well as basic needs of immediate context.

B1 - Threshold or intermediate

The student is capable of understanding the main points of basic texts in standard form, provided they present matters student is familiar with, either from experiences at work, school or leisure. He/she knows how to cope with most situations, which are likely to arise during travelling around the area where the language is spoken. The student is able to produce simple and coherent text on topics he/she is familiar with or personally interested in. He/she can describe experiences, events, wishes and ambitions, as well as briefly justify personal views and explain his/her plans and expectations.

B2 – Vantage or upper intermediate

The student understands the main ideas of complex texts on both actual as well as abstract topics, including technical ones, as long as those are found within his/her field of specialization. He/she can interact with native speakers with a sufficient degree of fluency and spontaneity, so that regular communication is possible, proceeding without strains on the parts of both speakers. The student can compose clear and detailed text on a wide range of subjects, as well as put forward his/her point of view on general issues explaining the advantages and disadvantages of different options

C1 – Effective operational proficiency or advanced

The student can understand a wide range of extensive texts which require certain language skills, such as ability to recognize their implicit meanings. He/she expresses him/herself fluently and spontaneously, without obvious signs of difficulties in search for adequate expressions. He/she shows flexible and effective use of language for social, academic and professional purposes. He/she can produce clear, well-structured and detailed texts on complex subjects, showing correct usage of syntactic patterns, connectors and cohesive textual devices.

C2 – Mastery or proficiency

The student can understand virtually everything heard or read; knows how to reconstruct the information and arguments from both spoken and written sources and can present those in a coherent and summarized way. He/she is able to express him/herself spontaneously, with great fluency and accuracy, distinguishing the peculiar shades of meaning even in more complex situations.
